Adobe Creative Residency

Everyone has a story to tell.
Those stories deserve to be heard.

Milo: txt-gr8

Through the Adobe Creative Residency program, we're giving creators of all backgrounds greater opportunities to share their stories and pursue their dreams. The Creative Residency supports creativity in the community through museum collaborations.

V&A Resident Inclusive Design
London, UK

Jessica Starns is a multidisciplinary artist interested in inclusive design and disability history and rights. At V&A she is exploring how disability enriches our understanding of design, researching adaptive design and objects created by disabled people for disabled people. Jessica is collaborating with the Schools team to create a supportive design studio for children, young people, and their support networks.

V&A Resident Mosaics and Ceramic Tilework
London, UK

Ciara Neufeldt is a ceramic artist and educator creating objects and installations that bring playfulness and joy into public spaces. At V&A she is collaborating with the Families team to explore themes of community, care, and collective making inspired by the ceramics and mosaics collections. She is also researching the quilts collection to understand how communal making can inform her own making process.

V&A Resident Photography
London, UK

Michael Akuagwu is a multimedia artist blending photography and photo-manipulation with a surreal approach to explore themes of self, identity, culture, and society. At V&A he is working with the Young People's team to share his creative process and inspire young people to use self-portraiture as a powerful tool for self-expression.

MoMA Resident Multimedia
New York, NY

Samora Pinderhughes is a multidisciplinary artist, composer, and filmmaker. At MoMA, he is creating sonic healing rooms for people who have experienced structural violence. For greater performance, installation, film, song, and language, these rooms shape and hold space for community engagement, collective exchange, and participatory action.

About the program

Creative Residents

The Creative Residents program gives artists early in their career access to a museum's resources, including staff expertise, mentorship, and a platform to display their work. During a 12-to-18-month period, Creative Residents hone their skills, expand their networks, and strengthen their practice.

Throughout their Residency, Creative Residents partner with their local community to produce socially engaged artwork. For greater detail on opportunities each museum offers Residents to support its creative programming, visit its site below.

Creative programming

Adobe x Museums aims to engage 10 million students globally online and in person with creative programming and resources that will enable them to bring their creativity to the world. To learn more about these museums' creative programming for the public, visit their sites below.

Questions? We have answers.

Am I eligible for the Creative Residency? If so, how do I apply?   —

Please visit each museum's site for eligibility and application details: MoMA, V&A.

What is Adobe's relationship with the Creative Residents?   —

Adobe provides mentorship, product support, and free access to the Adobe Creative Cloud All Apps plan to Creative Residents. Opportunities for thought leadership at Adobe-sponsored events are considered on a case-by-case basis.

How long will Adobe collaborate with a museum?   —

Adobe and the Adobe Foundation hope to collaborate with the museums in the program for three to five years each, and they plan to collaborate with more museums around the world in the future.

Who do I contact with additional questions about the Creative Residency?   —

Send your questions to creatres@adobe.com. Due to the high volume of emails we receive each year, we reply only to questions not answered on our site.

Design: mda-glry-grid-prsn-1up

Luca Bosani
Costume designer

Luca learned traditional shoemaking techniques to create "UPOs" (Unidentified Performing Objects), wearable artworks that invite fluid interpretations based on the wearer and context. At V&A, Luca delivered a career talk on their practice and collaborated with the Youth Collective to co-curate the program for Upstart, a festival exploring paths to creative careers.

Jacqui Ramrayka
Ceramicist

During her residency, Jacqui worked with students to convey the power of creativity and creative learning through the medium of clay. Her project "Clay and Conversations" explores ideas of home, belonging, and the Indo-Caribbean identity of women in the diaspora. She's planning additional workshops with students at MoMA in New York and the Gardiner Museum in Toronto.

Rachel Sale
Illustrator

The founder of F.A.T. Studio CIC, a nonprofit creative organization in South London, Rachel used her residency to focus on her practice and follow her interest in enacting cultural democracy in cultural institutions. With "Blue Print," she invited people from all over the world to help dream up museums of the future.

DonChristian Jones
Multimedia artist

DonChristian Jones is an artist, musician, and producer. During their residency, they created "The Sumptuous Discovery of Gotham a Go-Go." Inspired by their studio, a space for queer and trans people of color can skill-share, create, and cultivate joy, the exhibition offers a place to meet, perform, and conspire.

Kelli Anderson
2015 Resident
Brooklyn, New York, US

Kelli is an artist and designer interested in using design as a tool to explore how things work. She spent her residency exploring the question "What can paper do?" She tinkered with the material's capacity to amplify sound, tell time, and work as a camera. She took a few everyday tech objects, stripped them down, and rebuilt them in paper pop-up book form.
